

DRCC completes report on interpreting issues

A report on interpreting issues, which contains a basic policy recommendation and a number of guidelines, has been prepared by the Deafness Related Concerns Council and submitted to Central Administration for consideration.

The report grew out of a series of joint meetings between the DRCC and its Task Force on Orientation which began during the fall semester. The report was completed in January. Some changes have already been made in interpreting services on campus, and the Central Administration is preparing a response to the report that should soon be available.

In the introduction to the Interpreting Issues Report, four problem areas were indicated: conflicting in-house policies among various campus units, lack of formal guidelines for Interpreter Referral Services (now Gallaudet Interpreting Services), lack of common guidelines on the use of interpreters and compensation scales, and the need for guidelines on use of interpreters in specific situations or areas.

The proposed guidelines fall into three basic categories: those determined by Central Administration, which cover both Gallaudet Interpreting Services and non-GIS related guidelines; operational GIS guidelines, which the GIS itself would spell out; and instructional situation guidelines, to be considered by the faculty with input from the Student Body Government and Pre-College faculty in their particular area.

Nine recommendations were submitted regarding the interpreting services office. The first two recommendations are in line with decisions already made by Central Administration to change the name of Interpreter Referral Services to Gallaudet Interpreting Services, transfer it to the School of Communication and have it serve the Gallaudet community exclusively. Other recommendations include that the GIS have an independent budget to cover interpreting expenditures, that an advisory committee be established to review services and provide recommendations related to interpreting, that Gallaudet observe the standard rates for off-campus interpreter services, that GIS identify and use hearing impaired interpreters as sign-to-voice interpreters when appropriate, that there be at least two qualified interpreters at all major Gallaudet-sponsored events, that GIS provide interpreting services to part-time faculty or visiting lecturers from off campus, and that GIS budget for interpreting services when a consortium or special student registers for Gallaudet courses.

The DRCC report recommended that non-GIS-related guidelines, to be determined by Central Administration, spell out responsibilities for departments requesting interpreter services, including determining interpreting needs of the audience, requesting services at least two days in advance and evaluating the quality of interpreting on campus. The DRCC suggested that instructors, students or other persons participating in classes or meetings not function as interpreters. Other suggestions included educating universities, government, municipal and public service agencies

Members of the campus community enjoyed "A Day With President Lincoln" on the evening of Feb. 8. Lincoln actor Richard Blake, who has starred in nearly 4,000 portrayals of President Abraham Lincoln, performed in Elstad Auditorium. His appearance at Gallaudet was sponsored by the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, which is also sponsoring the Lincoln Lecture Series on Liberty and Equality this year at Gallaudet.

Susan Mubarak, wife of Egyptian president, visits Gallaudet Feb. 5

Mrs. Susan Mubarak, wife of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, came to the Gallaudet campus Feb. 5 to visit classes at Kendall Demonstration Elementary School, the Model Secondary School for the Deaf and the Learning Center.

Mrs. Mubarak was accompanied to Gallaudet by Mrs. Ashraf Ghorbal, wife of the Egyptian ambassador; Mrs. Betty Atherton, wife of the American ambassador to Egypt, Mrs. Thomas Nassil, wife of the acting chief of protocol; and Mrs. Patrick Daly, Protocol officer, U.S. State Department.

Dr. Edward C. Merrill, Jr., Dr. Robert Davila, Dr. Michael Deninger and Dr. Kenneth Tiktin greeted Mrs. Mubarak at KDES where she looked in on Pre-School and Primary level classes. At MSSD, Dr. Lee Murphy and Dr. Mary Hockersmith escorted Mrs. Mubarak to a child development class. Mrs. Mubarak is studying sociology at a university in Cairo and is particularly interested in child development. While at MSSD, Mrs. Mubarak met Magda Hassan, an MSSD student from Egypt, who presented her with a drawing.

At the Learning Center, Fern Edwards gave Mrs. Mubarak an in-depth tour of the new facility to the delight of hundreds of students who lined the halls, sidewalks and paths leading from the Center to the visitors' cars. Mrs. Mubarak waved to the students and seemed pleased by their warm reception.

Kendall Green—
Feb. 16, 1878

by Corrine Hilton

The Chapel is gaily decorated. This is a momentous occasion, the twenty-first anniversary of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf and Dumb. But more than that, it is the occasion of the dedication of a beautiful new building for the use of the Collegiate Department.*

The Chapel seats are filled to capacity with College and Primary students, faculty and friends. Great excitement and expectancy runs through the crowd, as they await the entrance of the president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes and his lady, to be accompanied by honored guests: Vice-President Wheeler and friends; Mrs. MacFarland, cousin of Mrs. Hayes; Senators Dawes, Edmunds and Windom; Governor Claflin of Massachusetts; congressional directors of the Institution with their ladies; members and past members of the Board of Directors; Frederick C. Withers, architect of the new building; Hon. R.M. Knapp of Illinois; Hon. Rufus P. Spaulding, ex-member of Congress from Ohio; Mrs. Speaker Randall and the daughters of Amos Kendall, Mrs. E. C. Cutter and Mrs. R.C. Fox.

It is barely seven years ago that the Chapel was filled for another great event—the dedication of Chapel Hall—when another president of the United States, Ulysses S. Grant, made an appearance.

The guests are taking a tour of the new edifice. They pass through the new rooms, many of which are a suite of two, consisting of a bedroom and a study. A hush falls over the group as Mrs. Hayes pauses to light a fire in one of the professor's rooms. They note that the museum, library, reading room, literary hall and classrooms are large and well lighted. The countryside and Washington City appear as a beautiful view from the windows. They notice the beautiful woodwork of oiled and varnished butternut, and walk through the corridors of buff and blue tiles laid on brick arches. They admire the staircases of stone and iron. They marvel at the ornate architecture of pressed brick laid in black cement and the stained glass windows of the second floor.

President and Mrs. Hayes with their honored guests enter the Chapel. The students rise to their feet and enthusiastically wave their handkerchiefs. The crowd quiets and the ceremony begins. Mr. S.M. Freeman of the senior class delivers an address on behalf of the students. Among other remarks he says, "Among those who honor us by their attendance today there are two whose presence is especially gratifying and whose interest in such gatherings never seems to diminish. President and Mrs. Hayes, amid all the vicissitudes of an active life, you have never ceased to give the deaf-mute new proofs of your benevolent regard. We greet you with pleasure, and hope you will share in the joy of this new possession."

Reports are given by the Hon. William Stickney, Senator Dawes and the Rev. Dr. Byron Sunderland. Senator Dawes congratulates the institution upon its steady and healthful growth from an insignificant beginning and praises the work of Dr. Gallaudet.

The program is over the crowd leaves, happy in the thought that the new College Building is well suited to the noble work of the education of the deaf.

*The new College Building was re-named College Hall in 1911 by President Percival Hall.

Thomas Landers, dean of Education and Human Services at Gallaudet, presents a set of Chinese textbooks to Terrel Bell, U.S. Secretary of Education. The rare set, a gift from the Chinese Minister of Education, was presented on behalf of a delegation of American educational administrators who visited the People's Republic of China last year as guests of the Minister. The collection, which includes all textbooks used in Chinese elementary and secondary schools available at the time, is the most complete in the United States. Access to the books is available to scholars through the U.S. Department of Education and through the Gallaudet College Library, where photo copies were placed.

Physical Plant people meet here

The Maryland/D.C. Chapter of the Association of Physical Plant Administrators will be meeting at Gallaudet Feb. 23. During the day-long program, the group will be discussing water management, in-house and contract preventive maintenance systems and equipment economics.

This chapter meets three days each year on a different campus; it last met at Gallaudet in June, 1973.

That same day, Feb. 23, the Baltimore Chapter, American Institute of Plant Engineers, will also be touring some areas of campus. Chapter members, who represent major Baltimore industries, tour a number of industrial facilities each year but have never toured a college campus. They will be looking at our facilities, lighting modifications and energy management equipment.

These two activities are the result of active participation by Gallaudet Physical Plant members in the two organizations.

NIH budget for FY 83

President Reagan in his recent State of the Union Address disclosed that the administration will propose a 2.7% increase for the NIH fiscal 1983 budget. This would amount to a $100 million addition to the current NIH $3.7 billion budget.

It was noted in the periodical, Federal Grants and Contracts Weekly, however, that the budget proposal would result in cutbacks at the 11 research institutes. It is hoped that the appropriations bill for NIH that emerges from Congress will exceed the president's spending request by a substantial amount.

Black society research

Barry Crouch, a faculty member in the History Department, is conducting research on the life and society of black persons during and after the Civil War. The study concerns black children, women and incarcerated prisoners in Texas during the Reconstruction years.

Crouch is collecting data from four archival repositories and is examining such original manuscripts as letters, diaries, governor's papers and newspapers. The aim of his research is to collect material about which historians generally have not written regarding the life of black Texans during the 19th century.

In addition to investigating the traditional aspects of black life, he will select some unusual topics concerning those parts of black life and the interaction of the black community with white society about which historians have limited knowledge.

Chandler Cowden, assistant professor of Art here, was one of three area artists cited for "superior achievement" last May in the GRACE (Greater Reston Arts Center) Reston Annual Juried Fine Arts Exhibition of Drawings and Paintings. Cowden's drawings, selected from among 60 works of area artists, won him a January exhibition of 20 acrylic and pastel still lifes and landscapes at the Lake Anne Gallery.

President's Office Notes

Reception held for our Northwest neighbors

More than 50 special guests, with a very special interest in the Gallaudet community, gathered at the Edward Miner Gallaudet Residence for a reception the evening of Feb. 2. The visitors, all residents of the neighborhood surrounding the Northwest Campus, came to Kendall Green to meet College administrators and have some of their questions answered.

In an atmosphere of celebration, the Northwest neighborhood residents asked about the possibility of the College providing sign language classes for them and their children. Some were anxious to know what programs would be housed on the Northwest Campus and what the impact might be on neighborhood traffic. Someone asked if the facilities would be available for neighborhood use (the answer is yes).

Dr. Merrill read a letter written by Nathan Poole, former member of the Gallaudet Board of Directors, in March of 1950. In the letter, Mr. Poole proposed that the College purchase a parcel of land very close to the property just acquired. Dr. Merrill then answered questions and discussed some of the proposed uses for the property.

George Boyd, chairman of the Gallaudet Community Relations Council, joined Gallaudet personnel in greeting the visitors from Northwest. A community group similar to the GCRC will be established soon in the vicinity of the Northwest Campus.

Residents from the Northwest Campus area talk with persons from Gallaudet at the Feb. 2 reception.

Advocacy Notes

by Merv Garretson

Late in December, the U.S. Congress passed a bill designating 1982 as the National Year of Disabled Persons. Ostensibly, the purpose of this action was to maintain the momentum initiated during the 1981 International Year of Disabled Persons. So now in the United States, IYDP has become NYDP.

The United States is not the only country to adopt this national commitment. With Peru and Zambia leading the way, a number of other nations have also designated 1982 as NYDP.

A privately funded National Office on Disability in Washington, D.C. continues to coordinate the national, state and community activities that got underway last year. Grassroots and self-help initiatives are continuing in 1,850 Community Partnership Programs. Governors in some states and a number of mayors have issued new proclamations for 1982.

Figures giving the number of disabled people in the United States vary from 35 million to 54 million, and worldwide at half a billion. However, disability affects not only disabled people but family members, friends, teachers, employers and everyone. The potential contribution of this large group of inter-related people needs to be expanded and used.

The goals of the 1982 National Year of Disabled Persons are similar to last year's IYDP: to promote the full participation in the life of our society of America's citizens with physical, sensory or mental disabilities through education, accessibility, employment, rehabilitation, purposeful application of biomedical research, increased application of technology to ameliorate the effects of disability for those who are already living with it and expanded international exchange of information and experiences to benefit all disabled persons.

In these times of government cutbacks and economic uncertainty, continuing efforts are needed to protect vulnerable individuals and to expand opportunities for them to achieve their real potential. The objectives of NYDP blend in well with Gallaudet's goals, which are not limited to 1982 but will continue through the years to come.

GCRC sponsors basketball game

about their responsibilities to provide and pay for interpreters; conducting orientation programs on interpreting for new employees and students; and recognizing the secretary-interpreter job classification. The group recommended that interpreting for multiply-handicapped students, such as deaf-blind, remain within Student Special Services.

In the area of operational guidelines, to be determined by the Gallaudet Interpreting Services office, the DRCC suggested that GIS responsibilities include selection and assignment of interpreters, their screening and evaluation, determining qualifications of College personnel as interpreters, arranging coverage for emergency interpreting and observing the current pay scale for free-lance interpreters.

Because of concern that the academic quality in the classroom situation may be suffering from lack of effective two-way communication, the DRCC singled out three situations for consideration by faculty. The DRCC report suggested that faculty consider the questions of using interpreters for hearing students, using participants in class discussion as interpreters and using interpreters with new faculty members, particularly at the College level.

In addition to the interpreting report, the DRCC has also made a recommendation to a task force of the Collegiate Faculty Curriculum Committee regarding its goal of helping students require knowledge about the physiological and psychological aspects of deafness and the social and cultural dynamics of the deaf community. The DRCC recommended that a credit course that would be an overview of deafness be developed and required of all undergraduates. This course could include a history of education of the deaf, development of deaf communication, deaf folklore and heritage, the psychology of deafness and the principles of audiology. In addition, the DRCC suggested setting up mini programs in dormitories to supplement the overview course.

The three other DRCC task forces anticipate completing their respective undertakings this semester in the areas of orientation, deaf employment and physical barriers. Any ideas or concerns related to these topics can be shared with DRCC members. Ausma Smits is chairperson of the DRCC and can be reached at x5378 TDD.

Track programs are combined

by Pattie Cinelli

This season the men's and women's track programs at Gallaudet have been combined into one under the direction of a new head coach, John Parker, who coordinates intensive indoor training with a specialized system of coaching.

Also MSSD athletic director and soccer coach, Parker took over the College program when Tom Berg, Gallaudet men's track coach for 25 years, retired from coaching. Parker had already been coaching the women. Berg is now facilities coordinator of the Physical Education and Athletics Department at Gallaudet. He also was head track coach for the U.S. team at the World Games for the Deaf last summer and coached in seven World Games.

Beginning this past December, the approximately 20-member team began training for the indoor season five days a week. The team attends an open invitational meet almost every week. In addition to Parker, who coaches hurdlers, relayers, long, triple and high jumpers and those participating in the technique events, John Libert, former track man at Catholic University, coaches pole vaulters; Bob Alexander, secretary in the Department of Educational Technology at Gallaudet, coaches the sprinters 100-to-800 meters; Bob Corbett, a Gallaudet alum-nus and former Gallaudet track man, coaches the shotput, javelin and discus competitors; and Roslye Geuss, a KDES primary school instructor, coaches the distance runners from 1500 meters and up.

"Specialization is built into the system with each coach. It should improve the quality of coaching as well as improving our results," explained Parker. "Track's a program that can really do well in a small college like Gallaudet."

For students interested in becoming spring candidates for the track program a meeting is being held Monday, Feb. 22 at 7 p.m. in classroom A of Hughes Gym.

Gilbert Delgado, dean of the Graduate School, appeared on the television program "Latin Tempo," a national Hispanic TV news magazine, on Jan. 24. Maria Siccardi, executive producer of the program, interviewed Delgado on the subject of the Hispanic deaf and his study of deaf children from non-native language homes. The study, an international survey of schools and programs for hearing impaired children with non-native home languages, was publicized in an article by Delgado in Directions magazine. The program, which also included footage of the campus, students and staff, was arranged by Director of Media and Campus Relations Donna Chitwood.
